FRIDAY, AUGUST 11, 1843.

FOR PRESIDENT,
HENRY CLAY,
OF KENTUCKYFOR GOVERNOR,
EDWARD ROBINSON,
OF THOMASTON.

WHIG CAUCUS.

THE Whigs of the city of Bangor are one and all, requested to meet at the CITY HALL, on SATURDAY EVENING next, at 7 1/2 o'clock, for the purpose of selecting Delegates to attend the County and District Conventions, to be held at LEVANT on WEDNESDAY the 16th instant.

Per order of the City Committee
Bangor, August 10th, 1843.

SEE FIRST PAGE.

Our State.

The time is rapidly approaching when the people of Maine are to make the selection of men to represent them in the State Legislature. This is an important duty. The State is in debt. It is in a great measure a new State—with much unsettled territory—with vast resources as yet unavailable—lacking capital to develop them. Her agricultural resources are good, but her surplus productions in this department cannot successfully compete in other markets with those from other sections. Her manufacturing resources are boundless, but in developing them she needs foreign capital and home encouragement. Her people are yet, like those of all new States, poor. These are among the important considerations that should engage the minds of the people in the selection of representatives who are paid from the public chest, with money drawn from the pockets of the people. These are important practical matters that effect the business, prosperity, and happiness of the people who support the government. But these things were overlooked and disregarded by our last legislature in the miserable scramble of narrow minded, hollow hearted demagogues in bargaining for seats in Congress and places of profit; and in the theatrical display of much patriotism in consuming thousands of dollars of the people's money in giving instructions to the National Congress—to refund the fine to General Jackson and for giving a debt to Amos Kendall and other similar matters with which the legislature of Maine had as much concern as with the thickness ice shall congeal on the shores of Greenland.

The people should see to it that they send clear headed, honest hearted men, to represent them. Let the demagogues for this year stay at home and let the State legislature for one year be conducted by practical men, by honest men, by those who care more to see the State prosper, than who shall have a seat in Congress, or be the next Governor. Let this feeling prevail among the people of this State, and we shall soon see Maine making rapid advances, and light hearted and merry, springing forward to the good of prosperity. But if political demagogism is to reign triumphant, she will move like a slave manacled and fettered, growing every day more weary and faint, beneath the intolerable load or want of encouragement to her industry on one hand, and the burdens or taxation on the other.

The Last Supper.

This piece of statuary will continue to be exhibited at the Hammond street vestry until Monday next, as we are informed. It has already been visited by very many of our citizens and by the Sabbath school scholars generally, but still many have not as yet taken the opportunity offered of witnessing it. The general design of the work we highly approve. As we said, yesterday, on another subject, we like the mode of teaching by representations. It serves not only to imprint the idea presented more firmly on the mind and interest the observer in the object before him, but also awakens an interest in the subject represented and prompts to a better acquaintance with it. The scene here represented as it is one of the greatest importance, is too, such as to deeply interest all; and with proper ideas and instruction connected with it, the exhibition may be made of great use. Let but the young mind realize that the object before him is a real image of his Saviour, of God manifest in the flesh, and thus gain a true idea of his bodily appearance and manifestation in perfect human form, and infidelity the offspring of a vague idea of the Divine, at once vanishes. The work may thus by proper instruction be made of great use. Without it, too, much good may result from the exhibition by exciting an interest in the scene illustrated as well its history as its great use and object.

If there is any thing in this world that is perfectly despicable, vile beyond endurance, loathsome to look upon and still more so to associate with, deserving of universal contempt and scorn in this life and unmitigated misery in the next, it is a reckless politician; one who has his own personal aggrandizement alone in view, and who labors only to subserve his own selfish ends, who for the sake of gratifying his own depraved will would wantonly and willingly violate all the finer feelings of man's nature, jeopardize the good of all others and degrade his country down to his own infernal level. Could such a man's true character be made manifest in this world, the doctrine of "total depravity" would become an axiom in moral science. Would that facts could admit of our believing such a being to have an existence in the imagination alone.

Editorial Correspondence.

UNITED STATES HOTEL,
PORTLAND, August 7, 1843.

To our Cushioned Chair:

The weather to day has varied between a gloomy fog and very pleasant. The number of passengers from Bangor on board the Huntress was about an hundred and all seemed to pass the day much to their satisfaction. We rarely pass either down or up the Penobscot river on our own delightful river, without learning some new fact either in its history or business; and as you are interested in the Press and its history on the Penobscot I will state to you that the beautiful town of Bucksport has the honor of having had the first newspaper published on the Penobscot, printed in that town, which, we believe was then called Backstown, in honor probably of the worthy men of that name who first settled there and whose enterprise and wealth made that town the seat of business all the region round about. This was some forty or fifty years since, and there are those now living who well recollect large showy maps that were then displayed in public houses in various places representing Bucksport as the centre and showing lines radiating therefrom with the distances to several points; to Bangor 17 miles—to Castine 17 miles—to Union River 17 miles—Belfast 17 miles.—Thus Bucksport was thought to be the centre of business for all these places. But the Creator fixed the natural advantages quite differently from this artificial one, and the natural law has of course triumphed. Bucksport however is considered as a gem of a village by all who have seen it, especially in an approach in ascending the river.

Portland appears to be quite gay now and is thronged with strangers. Parties are making up for journeys to the White Hills—others content themselves with visiting the Islands in this vicinity and partaking the bountiful hospitality of Portland.

The United States Hotel is now in good hands. Mr. Kingsbury has Mr. Bancroft associated with him and the whole establishment is conducted in style of elegance and comfort that is highly gratifying.

We dropped in for a few moments at the famous Elm House to see our friend Thorp, and found him full of business. He was overflowing with good nature of which his pleasant and happy face is an excellent index. Thorp will always be popular and his house, under his skilful management, will be a favorite resort.

We find that Mr. Brockway whose skill in the elegant art of dancing is unsurpassed, has established himself in this city. While in Bangor he had several successful schools and won the confidence of all, and gave good satisfaction. There are many of his profession who are unworthy of confidence, but his artistic skill, his correct habits and his gentlemanly deportment have given him a good reputation where he is known, and will secure him in this city abundant and profitable employment.

We found, while the boat stopped at Owl's Head to take a passenger, that there were many visitors there—most from our city. The women were out upon the green and promenading upon the shore. They appeared to reaping much enjoyment and cannot fail to improve their health. We learn that Capt Emery is reaping golden opinions for the skill with which he gratifies all tastes, and for his ingenuity in inventing innocent and pleasant amusement for all his visitors, from the hoary headed invalid to the languishing infant. A rare man that Capt Emery.

The passage to Portland has been smooth and quiet. We arrived here about four o'clock and found the fire horse all smoking for a race upon the Rail Road and as soon as the passengers were seated off it started with a long train of cars.

Mexican Dollars.

This coin, it is said, contains an alloy of gold, which accounts for the occasional demand for it in this country, for the purpose of exportation to France, where it is melted up and the gold extracted. The process is said to be so simple that one thousandth part of gold in the silver coin will repay all expenses of its extraction.

Another fact is mentioned in connection with the coin which, strange to say, the community has heretofore seemed to be ignorant of. The coin has never been made by Congress a legal tender, and therefore, no crime is committed in counterfeiting it. A counterfeiter of it was recently discharged by the Judicial authorities in New York on this account, after he was detected and arrested by the Police.

The Newburyport Watchtower states that Mr. Joshua Coffin is about publishing a History of "Old Newbery" including Newburgh and Newburyport in a large octavo of about 400 pages. Few towns furnish more abundant material for an interesting volume than this, and from the character of the author, we anticipate a valuable, curious and mirth-provoking book. It is to be embellished with engravings. Some years ago when we could count up the citizens of the village as Bangor then was, the number of "Newbury Whites" was about two hundred and since then has greatly increased so that we think the history alluded to will find a ready sale in our city.

Dea. Alexander Drummond of this city, in the yesterday's Gazette, acknowledges the contribution of $100, made by the members of the Sabbath school of the First Parish, to constitute him an honorary member for life of the A. B. C. F. M. and also of $30, to constitute him a life member of the American Home Missionary Society.

Rev. Dr. Wayland, President of Brown University, has made a donation of one thousand dollars, for the purpose of founding premiums to be awarded for excellence in the studies preparatory to admission in the Freshmen class.

Democratic Nominations.

At the County Convention holden in this city yesterday, the following nominations were made, viz:

For Senators.—Wm. R. Miller, of Howland; Hiram Rose, of Newport; A. D. Atwood, of Orrington.
For Clerk of Courts.—Win. T. Hilliard, of Bangor.
For Co. Treasurer.—Isaac C. Haynes, of Bangor.
For Co. Commissioner.—Rufus Gilmore, of Newburg.

The grand Menagerie, with which the great lion tamer, "Herr Driesbach" is connected, is wending its way down east. It was at Haverhill a few days since, and is expected in Portland soon. As all such things generally find their way to our city we shall probably be soon privileged with an opportunity of seeing the gentleman play with his nursery of lions, tigers and panthers. Well, come on! only be careful and keep your kittens in good humor while they are out among the crowd.

Slickiana.

"Time" says Sam Slick "is like women and pigs, the more you want it to go, the more it won't."

"There's two languages that's universal, the language of love and the language of money."

The following is his explanation of reason and insanity. "Reason is comparing two ideas and drawing an inference. Insanity is where you have such a rapid succession of ideas that you can't compare them."

Speaking of a beautiful and accomplished girl he says "Oh! she is an angel, and when I'm an angel I will fall in love with her, but as I'm a man, at least what left of me, I would just as soon fall in love with one that was a leetle, jist a leetle, more of a woman, and a leetle, jist a leetle, less of an angel."

The Magnet.

The following are among the subjects to which this work is particularly devoted, as announced on its covers, viz. Phrenopathy, Psychology, Magnetism, Neurology, Physiognomy, Phrenology, Vitality, Pathetism, Somniphathy, Sympathy, Somnambulism, Insanity, Trance, &c.—Cannot our goodly city afford more than one subscriber to a work that has such a general jurisdiction of matters and can boast of so many great names among its subjects? Alas! Alas!!

A great Work.

"The education of our children," says John Adams to his wife, "is never out of my mind. Train them to virtue. Habituate them to industry, activity and spirit. Make them consider every vice as shameful and unmanly. Fire them with an ambition to be useful. Make them disdain to be destitute of any useful or ornamental knowledge."

Railways and Coaches.

The best distinction drawn between railway and coach accidents was that of an old whip "If," said he, "you get comfortably capized into a ditch by the road side, there you are; but if you gets blown up by an engine, run into a cutting, or off an embankment, where are you?"

Ho! for Wisconsin.

Upwards of 40,000 pounds of Copper have been shipped from the Mineral Region of Wisconsin during the past year.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Canal is not to be finished—at present. The contract entered into by the president has been declared, by the board of directors, invalid.

Bells call young gentlemen to church more frequently than bells do.

Pointed Sermons.

At a recent anniversary of the Unitarian Association in Boston, the Rev. Dr. Pierce, of Brooklyn, related the following anecdote, illustrative of the effects of pointed preaching:

"More than 100 years ago, there graduated at Harvard University a man by the name of Rawson, who subsequently settled in the ministry at Yarmouth, on Cape Cod. He used to preach very pointed sermons. Having heard that some of his parishioners were in the habit of making him the subject of their mirth at a grog shop, he one Sabbath preached a discourse from the text, 'And I was the song of the drunkard.' His remarks were of a very moving character, so much so that many of his hearers rose and left the house in the midst of the sermon. A short time afterwards, the preacher delivered a discourse still more pointed than the first, from the text, 'And they, being convicted out of their own consciences, went out one by one.' On this occasion no one ventured to retire from the assembly, but the guilty ones resigned themselves, with as good grace as possible, to the lash of their pastor."—Portland American.

Birds.

A writer in the New York Journal of Commerce relates the following pleasing anecdote:

Early last summer I was on a visit to an old friend in the country, and while we sat on his piazza, talking of things long gone by, I noticed that on the trees and shrubs in his yard, there were a great number of birds. Presently they flew down upon the piazza, and quite a troop of them came hopping towards us. My old friend put his hand in his waistcoat pocket, and took out some seeds and crumbs of bread, and scattered them close by his chair. The birds picked them up, and then flew upon the trees again, singing out their notes sweeter than the strains of Bellini or Auber.

My friends then remarked, that the spring of 1842, having come on early, had brought on the birds earlier than usual. The ground having become covered with snow, they betook themselves to his house for food. He took special pains to give it to them, and they came regularly to be fed. They built their nests in the neighborhood, and when their young ones were hatched, they brought them to the house also. He said that they took his afternoon nap on his piazza, and the birds sung him to sleep. Indeed they seemed quite his pets.

By the Last Mails.

Great Flood at Chester, Pa.

The storm of Saturday which did such great damage in Philadelphia and vicinity, extended to Chester where it raged with still greater force and fury. A writer says, "Our shores are strewn with wrecks, our streets filled with ruins, and from every section we hear tales of terror and desolation and death, sufficient to appal the stoutest hearts." The town was inundated, houses demolished and bridges swept away.—The suspension bridge, the pride of the place, being the first chain bridge built in the world, was entirely destroyed. Nearly every bridge on Chester and Ridley creeks were also carried away. In addition to all this more than 20 lives are already ascertained to have been lost by the flood. In one or two instances entire families were drowned.

About 20 lives it is ascertained were lost by the flood in Philadelphia.

Supposed arrest of the Pirate Webster.

The Albany Evening Journal of Monday, says—Officer Nixon of our city Police, last evening arrested a man at Rome, upon suspicion of his being the Pirate Webster, the only one of the perpetrators of the outrage on board the Sarah Lavina who had not been arrested. The person arrested is a young Irishman, who gives his name as T. Coffee. Suspicion was first excited by the circumstances under which he took passage at New York for the West. He was trucked by Nixon from New York to Rome where he was secured. He was on his way to Buffalo, having taken passage in a canal boat at Albany.

He has a small trunk with him which contained a few articles of clothing. He admitted to Nixon that he was of the party on board the Violent Affray in Kentucky.

The Madisonian of Monday Evening, (says the Daily Times,) gives a rumor of a most violent assault perpetrated in Garrett Davis' district by Mr. C. M. Clay upon a Mr. Brown special agent of the P. O. Department.

The difficulty originated at a caucus at which some unfair imputations were made against Mr. Clay who denied the charge. Mr. Brown stepping forward to reiterate the charge, Mr. Clay assailed him with a bowie knife and mangled him in a most shocking manner so that his life is considered in danger.

Phoenix Bank Trials.

On Tuesday the court proceeded with the trial of Wyman and Brown—Mr. Huntington opened the cause by giving a succinct history of the case, and then proceeded to call the witnesses on the part of the Government. John A. Bolles Secretary of State, and James Hunnewell, acting President of the Bank were examined and the cause then adjourned to the next day. The Attorney in his opening manifesting an intention of applying his evidence to the first count alone in the indictment, the court did not think it necessary to give any opinion on the motion offered by Mr. Dexter the previous evening.

Massachusetts when on her way from Providence to New York, but denies that he was on board the schooner. He also admitted that he boarded at the house in New York, with the other men, and left the day after their arrival. He has left a chest of tools in that city, having pawned them as he alleges, to raise money. He has been committed to jail, and Nixon leaves this evening for New York to obtain the necessary evidence to identify him.

In politics as well as in the common business of life, the good old proverb holds true that "honesty is the best policy," a fact which is too much overlooked, or the rule regarded as having too many exceptions, in these political times. True policy would always dictate that it should always be applied as a test in determining any course of action.
